National Pension

Major Change Planned?

TORONTO (CP) - The Star says in an Ottawa dispatch that a major modification in the Canada Pension Plan has been proposed in a letter from Prime Minister Pearson to the 10 provincial premiers.

The story says the change would scale down the maximum pension of $100 a month available at age 70-after the plan has been in effect for 10 yearsto $75 a month.

Another change would delay the original option to take a smaller pension at age 65 and make this option available first at 69. The following year, the option would be available at 68. and the age would decrease each year until the 65-year level is reached.

The basic $75-a-month old age pension would remain the same, making a total maximum pension of $150 a month, instead of $175 under the previous plan.

The Star says details of the letter will be made public Monday. There was no official confirmation from Ottawa, the paper says, but the news had come from a provincial source.

(Prime Minister Pearson now is in Paris for talks with President de Gaulle of France, and Health Minister LaMarsh could not be reached for comment.) PROPOSES RESERVE FUND

The story says the letter also proposes that the revised contributory plan include provision for a $1,500,000,000 reserve fund.

This would be a distinct change from the original plan of a pay-as-you-go arrangement which was severely criticized by former premier Leslie Frost of Ontario and others at federalprovincial conferences which considered the plan.

The reserve fund would not only meet provincial objections but would help as a guarantee against fluctuations in contribu

The sources gave no details, but it was understood full diplomatic recognition would not be announced immediately.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, 1964.

Point Grey Tells the Story

WHEN, A YEAR AGO, DR. J. B. Macdonald set a price tag on higher education in this province (111 million dollars a year by 1970-71) many British Columbians gasped, caught their breath and hoped prayerfully that the cost problem would go away.

Short of war or disastrous depression, it will not go away. Dr. Macdonald, up-dating his earlier findings and applying them to the University of British Columbia, has hown why.

In a report, which he calls "The Challenge of Growth" and which he released the other day, the Univer-sity of British Columbia president set out the facts

By 1966 UBC's student body will swell from today's 14,800 to 19,400. In the next seven years UBC will have to educate a large part of the 16,500 primary and secondary school teachers required by the ballooning population.

1970 UBC should have doubled its present enrolment in graduate studies to 3,000, in part to provide necessary university and college professors.

Between now and 1966 UBC should increase its income to a predicted national average of $2,200 per student against Point Grey's below-average of $1,517 today.

The latter sum is furnished, 36 cent by the Government of per cent by the Government of British Columbia, 25 per cent by student fees, 25 per cent by the Federal Government, and 14 per cent from miscellaneous sources including gifts and grants.

GOVERNOR WALLACE OF Alabama addressed his audience of university students here yesterday and apparently acquitted himself well. His arguments were tellingly presented, his jibe at

Canada's restrictive immigration laws was cleverly inserted, his appeal for states' rights versus federal authority, particularly in the field of education, was calculated to find receptive ears in this Confederation.

His statistics, if accepted at face arguments and the experienced handling of a crowd; behind all the sub-departments of the question—the fundamental issue still stands:

value, might convince many.

Faculties must be strengthened by additional staff; at least 100 a year to meet the current inadequate teacher-student ratio, another 50 a year to build up graduate teaching

To do this, salaries will have to be increased to compete with other-big Canadian and American universities, and far above the three per cent per year national average.

Library facilities need expansion at UBC, which should raise the annual book budget of $600,000 in 1964 to $1 million in 1970.

More funds are needed for computing-centre work and the training of those who require instruction in that field.

Professional growth is essential in applied sciences, health sciences, forestry and agriculture and the present nucleus of staff must be expanded.

To provide physical accommoda-tion for inescapable development, if UBC is to be a first class university, academic buildings, plus services such as heating plant, roads, power, etc., will have to be provided at a cost of at least $30 million over the next five years.

These are the facts and the reof the University of British Columbia. They could be paralleled on a lesser scale by other centres of higher education in the province.

The fundamental problem in all is financial. If the province wishes to go ahead as it can, given adedirection, the problem will have to be met.

All the pro-segregation arguments thus find their level in the face of this basic fact. The segregationists may win battles on the platform, in the streets, in the courts. But they will lose the war.

They may triumph in debate, but they cannot vanquish history— and it is the slow, ultimate, inexor-able movement of history which is to be swept away.

FROM PARIS A Test for the Naessens Serum

"biologist," Gaston Naessens, has cured cases of leukemia, have made the island of Corsica the centre of an international controversy. And in this twilight world between medical science and quackery, desperate parents clutch at even the shadow of a hope, and the general public is incapable of informed judgment.

Naessens does not count himself a faith healer, but he undoubtedly benefits from the quite widespread belief in from the quite widespread belief in France in the mysterious powers of "magnetizers" and others who are expected to succeed where qualified doctors fail.

Faith healers are regularly tried and fined in this country, but the court cases increase, if anything, the common belief in their powers. These cases, moreover, are always the result of legal action by the French Medical Board, which inevit-ably appears to be acting out of self-interest and in defence of group privileges. From there, it is a short step to the idea that a man convicted of illegally practis-ing medicine is the victim of professional ing medicine is the victim of piealousy.

But in the Naessens case, not even the faith healers will defend him. The president of the French "Group of Free Medical Practitioners," M. Besson, said the other day that any unqualified research, worker who claimed to be able to cure ancer or leukemia was "either a vision-

Skeptical

The French press, as a whole, has been skeptical, to say the least, about the new serum. One Paris paper has almost daily branded Naessens as a "chariatan." But none of this adverse publicity has prevented the arrival of leukemia patients in Ajaccio, Corsica, from France and Britain in hope of a last chance of survival. At present, the Naessens treatment is being administered to three childrentwo French and one a four-year-old boy The French press, as a whole, has two French and one a four-year-old boy from Blackpool, England, whose parents brought him to Corsica just before Christ-cialist, Dr. Pierre Denoix.

"Good news, Martha . . . we have a purpose again . . . !"

Naessens has been bombarded with inquiries from cancer sufferers as far afield as Canada, although his serum has never been subjected to normal laboratory tests nor received official authoriza-tion by the French Ministry of Health.

In fact, very little is known as yet about either Naessens or his remedy. He is now 39, a self-confident, elegant man. He claims he began experimenting on cancer cures in 1950 and discovered his first remedy shortly afterwards, when he was only 26. Known as "GN 24" it was apparently produced in France and sold in Switzerland, but so far neither Naessens himself nor anyther selection. himself nor anyone else has come with concrete evidence that the medica-ment was effective in the treatment of

No University Status

Although Naessens calls himself a biologist," he does not hold a qualification from any French university. He was tried and heavily fined in 1956 for illegal practice of medicine. This is why he now refuses to administer his serum himself It is being injected under the supervision of a qualified doctor is a private clinic

Despite all the reasons for doubting the value of his discovery, the French authorities have now offered to put the serum through the prolonged and costly laboratory tests free of charge. These tests are compulsory before any medicament may be distributed commercially in France. The tests will, be carried out, if Naessens agrees, at the Gustave-Roussy Institute near Paris, under the authority of the internationally-known cancer spe-

Public opinion, especially in Corsica where fall of the serum, and it may establish a precedent which could later prove embarrassing. But the French Ministry of Health decided this was the only way to satisfy an impassioned public opinion that Naessens was not being ruthlessly ignored.

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP

Public opinion, especially in Corsica where feelings are running high, is swayed by the argument that Naessens. cannot do any harm, when conventional medicine holds out no hope for his patients. If there is the slightest chance of a cure, then Naessens must be allowed to carry on.

Doubt Remains

Since the serum has not been officially analyzed and tested, the "biologist's" claims have not been refuted beyond all doubt. And while this doubt remains, Naessens will continue to raise hopes, whatever the scientists may say. He has received offers to continue his research in Britain and Italy. The central problem is the leukemia patients frequently benefit from remissions - periods when they appear completely cured, and when the disease cannot be detected. Such periods have been known to last several years.

But no real cure has ever been discovered, according to official records. The Naessens case has forced medical author-ities to insist on the ugly truth that death from the disease is still ultimately inescap-

Naessens' popularity in Corsica (and the island seems ready to defend him against the mainland) rests mainly on his supposed cure of a 15-year-old French boy, Bertrand Ferran. He received the Naessens course of treatment for two months and to all appearances has completely recovered. Experts point out, however that he may merely be benefiting from a remission.

If Naessens is proved wrong --may take a long time to do this beyond all doubt - then many people are likely to The French decision was a difficult one be cruelly hurt. Naessens is not risking only his own future in this strange affair.

Bicultural Overseas

By MAURICE WESTERN

THE prime minister is apparently prepared to break, at least in part, a long standing tradition of the Canadian foreign service. This is Canadians of British origin are uniquely qualified to deal with the British government. Its corollary is, of course, that Paris must be reserved for a Canadian of the French cul-

Mr. Lionel Chevrier has been named high commissioner in Lon-Western don. Mr. Chevrier is at least as fluent in English as he is in French (more so, according to some French Canadians). But his Ontario background, Chevrier has represented a Montreal riding in recent years and, as deputy prime minister, is Mr. Pearson's ranking Quebec colleague in the House of Commons. His appointment, accordingly, is a sharp departure from past practice.

The record goes back to 1880 when Sir Alexander Tilloch Galt was sent to London by Sir John Macdonald as our first high commissioner. He was succeeded by Sir Charles Tupper. Always since the post has gone to an English Canadian, the most recent appointment being that of Mr. George Drew in 1957.

In 1882 the Canadian government established an agency in Paris, sending to the French capital Mr. Hector Fabre, a Liberal senator who happened to be the brother-in-law of Sir George Etienne Cartier. Mr. Fabre also represented the Quebec government although this interesting adventure in co-operative federalism was short-lived. Mr. Philippe Roy became in 1911 our first commissioner general and in 1928 first Canadian minister to France. Always thereafter the appointment went to a French Canadian, one of whom — General Vanier — is our present governor-general.

Some have doubted, however, that this is the best way of advertising the bilingual and bicultural character of the Canadian confederation. The point could surely be made much more effectively by sending to London a French Canadian who speaks impeccable English or by appointing to Paris an English Canadian fluent in the language of France.

Better Choice

There are other reasons for believing that Mr. Ohevrier is a better choice for London than for Paris. Quebec now has its own quasi-diplomatic representa-tion in the French capital. The precise status of the "delegation" headed by Mr. Charles Lussier is not easy to define but its presence in Paris suggests that the problems of co-operative federalism in their modern form have crossed the Atlantic. Mr. Chevrier represents an older school of Quebec liberalism than Mr. Lesage and might be handicapped in his dealings with the delegation.

It is a fact, in any case, that Canada has long been represented by career diplomats in Paris and a change at this diplomats in Paris and a change at this time might be misunderstood by Mr. de Gaulle's somewhat sensitive government. A quite different situation prevails in London where high commissioners have commonly (although not invariably) been men with political backgrounds. This was, of course, the case with the retiring high commissioner, Mr. Drew, whose usefulness was certainly not impaired by the fact that he was Mr. Diefenbaker's predecessor in the leadership of the Conservative party.

To the Bottom of the Tank

Behind the Rhetoric

THE INITIAL PHASE OF THE Morrow Royal Commission investigating gasoline prices in British Columbia has shown, as was pre dicted, little more than that subject is extremely complicated and that the hearings themselves will be protracted and costly.

There was a certain disappointment that the case presented by Mr. Cyril Shelford, the MLA from Omineca who worked tirelessly and cleverly to force the investigation on a reluctant government, brought forward no new facts to freshen up his charge that the disparity in gasoline prices resulted from profiteering by the oil companies or that not justified by competitive situations.

Mr. Shelford's assertion that the motorists of this province pay $32.7 million more per year for gasoline than they should, made big headlines. It is less convincing when it is realized that Mr. Shelford based this figure on the findings of the report prepared in 1935 by Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald when he conducted a similar inquiry into gasoline pricing.

In the more than 28 years which Grant for Symphony have elapsed since Mr. Justice Mac-donald made his report the whole terested in the Victoria Symphony Society have elapsed since Mr. Justice Macrefining industry—from source of are being reminded that the performances supply of crude oil right through to be rendered by the Symphony Orchestra

No Diversion for Prairies

Dr. Jack Davis, M.P. gave an interesting address to the Vancouver Board of Trade, Thursday, January 9, in which he discussed the possibility of selling water diverted from Canadian rivers, to U.S. for "tens of billions of dollars". INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

Judith Robinson used to say her two favorite publishers were John Bassett and Roy Thomson. She liked working for the former because he never let his disagreement huffiness. She liked the latter once she no longer had to work for him and could relish his avid pursuit of money, newspapers, and a British title. One needs Judith's humor and irony to present adequately the comic aspect of the Thomson title bruhaha and the counter argument to the Bassett-Thomson stand that the Pearson government should not legislate against foreign ownership of Canadian newspapers.

Bord Thomson is disappointed at losing his Canadian citizenship, Lord Thomson is "appalled at the proposal the Canadian government should enact non-Canadian ownership of Canadian newspapers and magazines." Lord Thomson owns or controls both Canadian newspapers and British newsboth Canadian newspapers and British newspapers. He is rather good as a British publisher. His papers there are quality ones. Obviously, Thomson, the Britisher and publisher, Is a great improvement on Thomson the Canadian publisher. If your imagination manages the separation of the British Thomson from the Canadian Thomson, you can see the merit of foreign-ownership of Canadian newspapers, providing Lord Thomson lets his Canadian papers meet something like the standards of his British ones, or even the standards of other Canadian dailies

Bitterness

Turn it around! Lord Thomson would never have gotten his title in Britain if he had operated there as a publisher the way he has in Canada. Even the foundation he has set up, even his big gifts to the Bytish Tory party, would not have bagged the title. He is taken seriously in Britain and liked because he owns and encourages good, serious publications.

I have acquaintances and friends by the dozen (literally!) who work or have worked for Thomson papers in Canada, Almost everyone is ashamed of it or remembers the experience with bitterness, whether it was in Prince Albert or Charlottetown. A former Thomson editor told me just this week: "It was always pinch. 'You're spending too much—for reporters, for proofreaders, for pictures.' The Thomson system gives freedom to publishers and editors but no money in order to use that freedom." This man wound up hating himself and his fellows for working within such a cheap operation.

All of us should remember these points about Roy. Lord Thomson, before he mes-merizes us through the delight we take in his artless delight at his purchased furbelow. Let's consider the objections of Canadian publishers like John Bassett or the recom-mendations of Canadian publishers like St. Clair Balfour on this question of outlawing foreign ownership of our press. At the least, these gentlemen have recognized by their actions and the calibre of their publications that a daily newspaper is more than a commercial enterprise, that there is a larger imperative and responsibility than just making a profit. Roy Thomson has not, nor has his son, Ken.

Artless Delight

Great concentrations of capital can acquire any commercial enterprise, including newspapers. Lord Thomson has proved that, So has Max Bell. So has St. Clair Balfour. This may be sad enough in its monopoly aspect. We do have laws that are supposed prevent or break up monopolies or com-nes. These have not been as effective as they should in preventing the spread of newspaper chains, although they have offered some restraint. Why not a law to make sure the chains are Canadian?

make sure the chains are Canadian?

It isn't that any of us have greater faith in the fitness or wisdom of Canadian owners or publishers. It's simply that we share a nationality. I assume this nationality makes me and you and the Canadian publisher different in outlook and aspiration to other nationalities. Frankly, I want Canadian nationality to develop. Frankly, it is threatened from an inadvertent overspill of American nationality and capital. Why not stop it before it gets a foothold in this most basic means of influence and ideas?

We have used tariffs boldly since 1859 to

We have used tariffs boldly since 1859 to protect Canadian industries. Why? Because the majority views then and since have been that we must develop and extend a manufacture of our own. Is it so unprincipled, is it so against the free enterprise way of life, to use another kind of legal barrier to protect us and our daily press?

Davies' Dictum

I hope to see the organized labor movement in Canada grow stronger and less in need of support and membership through American unions. I believe most Canadians, american unions. I beneve most Canadians, including most trade unionists, share this hope. Fortunately, in the field of printed communication, the ownership and direction of all the daily press and most of the periodical press in Canada is Canadian. Unlike the labor situation, unlike our natural resource situation, we do not have to work slowly toward Canadian ownership of the press. That's why I believe the logic ne Pearson intention will have such appeal to the political parties and politicians. Each party is on record with its concern at inroads of American ownership. Therefore, the proposal when it comes should get quick

We are so sentimental about Lord Thom son's recognition in Britain right now that I am afraid we may let his criticisms of the prevention of foreign ownership sway us. It's well to remember Robertson Davies' dictum that "sentiment is the philosophy of boobs" and not boob away to outsiders our main means of domestic intelligence.

CURLERS CORNER

One man doesn't think very highly of car 'spiels or other rich curling competit

His neighbor begs to differ.

There's fuel for a fiery argument when the question of ideals pops up, but nobody can argue this inescapable fact: Those rich, special events produce, generally, a calibre of curling that is difficult to match.
That's how Lyall Dagg sees it.

Dagg, visiting our town this week on business, skipped one of the 32 rinks that went looking for four new cars in the Masters bonspiel at Calgary last week. The Vancouver skip got to the fours in the final run for the cars.
"You'll never see better curling anywhere. That's the answer to good curling," said Dagg.

This is one of the reasons why the Prairie provinces are so dominant in curling today. Carspiels aren't quite as prevalent as they once were, but good competition is. The standard of curling in B.C. would increase greatly 'spiels.' The recent 16-rink invitation cash bonspiel at Allan's Rink, as Dagg agreed, is a start. There are some who object to the Masters as a bonspiel created by private promotion designed to cash in on the Dagg had an answer that, in part, defended the/commercial aspect of the carspiel.

"Sure, it's fun as a commercial venture." Dagg admits, "but the promoters still have the foresight to want the curlers to share in the running of it."

Rinks that reach the fours in the showdown event, Dagg said, automatically become shareholders in Masters Sports Limited, the sponsoring body of the Calgary affair,
This was one of Dagg's rewards.

A share also means the rink is automatically invited back the following year. The Masters has had a waiting list for the last two years, and now there is talk of reducing the limit from 32 to 16 rinks.

LOOSE STRAWS: The betting is that Duncan's Glen Harper and Keith Dagg of Victoria will finish 1.2 in the men's Island playdowns at Courtenay this weekend . . . The top two rinks represent the Island in the Coast playoff at Victoria Club Feb. 8-9 . Flora Martin's Victoria rink is heavily favored to win the ladies' playdowns which got under way at Nanaimo last night . . Ruth Hubert of Richmond won the women's Zone 1 playdowns . . Continued from Page 1 derstood they may take the form of periodic cabinet-level meetings similar to those Canadian ministers now have with their counterparts in Washington and London.

In the cultural fields, the communique said both countries will seek every opportunity to intensify exchanges in the arts, letters, humanities and sciences.

"In this context, it was noted with great interest on the part of the French that the Canadian government intended to undertake a program designed to develop cultural relations between the two countries."

France promised co-operation and officials of both countries will meet later to discuss the program.

TRAIN ENGINEERS

A recent agreement between the Association Pour l'Organization des Stages dans l'Industrie Francaise, the Quebec government and the University of Toronto would be of considerable significance in training new engineers.

Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville had advised External Affairs Minister Martin at concurrent talks that the French government would welcome Canadian students at the Ecole Nationale d'Administration.

Pearson and Pompidou expressed the desire that commercial exchanges between the two countries be developed "to th fullest possible extent." The communique added:

"They were agreed that this strengthening of ties could take place in the context of a reduction of trade barriers and the expansion of international trade, the objectives of the forthcoming GATT negotiations.

"They noted with satisfaction that projects of mutal interest in the field of defence production were under study. They also took note of the interest of French business circles in new investment possibilities in Canada."

SHEDS LITTLE LIGHT

The joint statement shed little light on the political aspects of the meeting. It simply said that discussions between de Gaulle and Pearson "involved a full exchange of views on major international problems, as well as on defence questions affecting the two countries."

It said de Gaulle and Pearson studied the present situation and traced views on "likely developments" in East - West relations.

"They also reviewed developments in Asia and their implications for the West. They considered the situation in the countries of Southeast Asia, where Canada has responsibilities as a member of the international commissions for supervision and control."

This referred to the commissions in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia under the 1954 Geneva agreement ending the war in Indochina between France and the Communist - led Viet Minh. India and Poland are the other members of these com-

The two men also agreed on the importance of accelerating economic growth in the developing countries by assisting them in increasing their trade and by sustained programs of external aid.

The two governments felt it would be useful to co-rodinate their policies in this respect, in view of the considerable role which France has traditionally played in this field and of recent developments in the Caradian program of aid to French speaking countries in Africa.

Highlights and Listings

It's been interesting to watch The Danny Kaye Show develop into one of the brightest variety shows

There were many doubts whether Kaye could establish and sustain a television show of worth but the doubts now are foundless.

His battery of writers have done very well by the star though there-were nights when he was let down

Wednesday was one such night. The skits, usually a highlight, were contrived and forced. Even guest Jackie Cooper, a very fine comedian in his own right, didn't look comfort-

There was nothing in the mish-mash of comedy lines to provide the pair with the needed incentive.

Fired typewriter blood had a lot to do with it.

Yet the same writers came up with a very hilarious hour just one week ago.

a bug-eyed cod on a handline.

The show always produces fine guests who perform their chores efficiently but the star is Danny Kaye, who does everything well.

Most comedians have one basic funny ingredient which they milk for all it's worth. Kaye is gifted with many. He jumps from song to dance to slapstick to impersonations to dialect to pantomime with great

Proceeds from these bonds, to be handled by New York brokerage firms, together with an advance U.S. govern-ment payment of about $65,000,000 for anticipated flood control benefits, will be turned over to a Canadian fund, from which British Columbia will be able to draw to finance construction of three planned Columbia River dams Duncan, High Arrow and Mica.

It is understood here that British Columbia insisted on a large advance, lump-sum payment as part of final negotiations completed at negotiations cor Ottawa Monday.

National Pension

Major Change Planned?

says in an Ottawa dispatch that a major modification in the Canada Pension Plan has been proposed in a letter from Prime Minister Pearson to the 10 provincial premiers.

The story says the change would scale down the maximum pension of $100 a month available at age 70—after the plan has been in effect for 10 years to $75 a month.

. Another change would delay the original option to take a smaller pension at age 65 and make this option available first at 69. The following year, the option would be available at 68. and the age would decrease each year until the 65-year level is reached.

The basic $75-a-month old age pension would remain the same, making a total maximum pension of $150 a month, instead of $175 under the previous plan.

The Star says details of the letter will be made public Mon-day. There was no official confirmation from Ottawa, the pa-per says, but the news had come from a provincial source. (Prime Minister Pearson now is in Paris for talks with Presi-Health Minister LaMarsh could not be reached for comment.)

PROPOSES RESERVE FUND The story says the letter also proposes that the revised contributory plan include provision for a $1,500,000,000 reserve fund.

This would be a distinct change from the original plan of a pay-as-you-go arrangement which was severely criticized by former premier Leslie Frost of Ontario and others at federalprovincial conferences which considered the plan.

The reserve fund would not only meet provincial objections but would help as a guarantee against fluctuations in contribu

Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

The new issues are authorized under authority of an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Subscriptions, subject to allotment, may be made to Bank of Canada, Ottawa, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Pearson Informs Premiers

TORONTO (CP) - The Star says in an Ottawa dispatch that a major modification in the Canada Pen-sion Plan has been pro-posed in a letter from Prime Minister Pearson to the 10 provincial premiers.

The story says the change would scale down the maximum pension of $100 a month avail able at age 70—after the plan has been in effect for 10 years to $75 a month.

Another change would delay he original option to take a smaller pension at age 65 and make this option available first at 69. The following year, the option would be available at 68. and the age would decrease each year until the 65-year level is reached.

The basic $75-a-month old age pension would remain the same, making a total maximum pen-sion of $150 a month, instead of $175 under the previous plan.

The Star says details of the letter will be made public Monday. There was no official con-firmation from Ottawa, the pa-per says, but the news had come from a provincial source.
(Prime Minister Pearson now is in Paris for talks with President de Gaulle of France, and Health Minister LaMarsh could not be reached for comment.) PROPOSES RESERVE FUND

The story says the letter also proposes that the revised contributory plan include provis for a $1,500,000,000 reserve fund. This would be a distinct change from the original plan of a pay-as-you-go arrangement which was severely criticized by former premier Leslie Frost of Ontario and others at federalprovincial conferences which considered the plan.
